

instructions: answer on separate sheet. all measurements are to be converted into grams and kilos.

(a) the soul,  $F$ , of block  $F$  ( $H - 1$ )
(b) the breaking point  $x$

- A. from injuries sustained in a fall.
- B. asphyxiation/drowning (in your own blood)
- C. other natural causes
- D. cardiac arrest
- E. self-inflicted gunshot wound
- F. internal bleeding

(15 points) question 3. find the formula for maximum patronage ~~of~~ of noose  $BL$ .

(53 points) question 4. babylon + 5 is all over me, if you can't handle the whole weight, measure the knee in tonnage. the elbow exerts so many pounds of pressure per cubic centimeter of throat ( $kM$ ), it's weighing my brain. an advocate for a lighter sentence, the lies of a white woman as an inverse ratio to  $\Delta s$ . the air stops. everything is weightless. all the kisses on the cheek at the wake is 7 grams, if anything at all. who's gonna take the weight?

breaking point  $\Delta S = \frac{\text{greed}}{\text{ignorance}} = 10^3$ (9 points) Bonus: what is the state of things left hanging to entertain a white mob?

(Hint: Valsin, Paul, and Bazile were lynched in Jefferson Parish, Louisiana at midnight September 16, 1893. Ever since the murder of Judge Victor Estopinal and the fatal wounding of his son by the negro Julian, their brother, excitement has been at the highest pitch in the parish, and parties of white men on foot and on horse have been scouring the country looking for the negro. The searching parties became very much aroused when the negro Julian could not be found. In a suspicion of conspiracy Julian's three brothers, Valsin, Bazile, and Paul, and two cousins, together with their mother and the wives and sisters of the men, were arrested and locked up in the jail in Southport, half a mile from New Orleans. A posse, disappointed at failing to find the negro Julian, broke into the jail and lynched Valsin and Bazile. The posse took the remaining brother, Paul, to Camp Parapet, a settlement consisting almost entirely of negroes, a few miles away, where he was promptly lynched to overawe the negroes. All of the three men were strangled to death before they were hung.)

(for our visually-impaired students: click or scan to hear a read out of questions.)